Tonic water's history begins in 17th-century Peru, where Spanish colonists discovered malaria treatment in quinaquina bark. Some say the Countess of Chinchon brought it to Spain around 1640, others credit Jesuit missionary Barnabe de Cobo in 1632. Known as "Countess's powder" or "Jesuit's powder," the bark became popular in Europe.

In the 18th century, Linnaeus named the tree "cinchona" after the Countess. Its bitter bark was mixed with sugar and carbonated water to improve the taste, and tonic water was first sold in 1858. Around the same time, gin gained respectability, creating the iconic gin and tonic.

Identify the style of your own favourite gin, and the dominant flavours in it. We suggested pairings below.

East Imperial Burma Tonic

Warm and spicy with a hint of cinnamon, top notes of lemongrass and lime.

East Imperial Yuzu Tonic

Robust and aromatic sweet citrus flavour, strong Japanese citrus fruit.

East Imperial Grapefruit Tonic

Up to 1,200 eaux-de-vie, made using grapes grown in Grande Champagne – the premier cru of the Cognac region – are carefully blended over the years to create the cognac inside every LOUIS XIII Classic decanter. Provenance and time are the very essence of LOUIS XIII cognac. Each drop represents a finely tuned craft passed down from one generation of Cellar Master to the next. The eaux-de-vie are slowly aged in old Limousin tierçons (traditional aged French oak casks). Every sip is a taste of time.

TEMPERANCE

The temperance movement of the 19th century, led largely by women, protested alcohol abuse, which often led to domestic violence and family hardship. This activism eventually contributed to Prohibition in 1920. To support their cause, many promoted non-alcoholic alternatives, known as “temperance drinks.”
